DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's arguments filed 4/20/09 and 6/30/09 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Previous rejections and other issues not addressed below are withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,2,4,5,29,34-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Alvira et al (Molecular modeling study for chiral separation of equol enantiomers by beta-cyclodextrin, vol. 240, issues 1-5, 1999, pp. 101-108). Alvira teaches the separation of R-equol from the S-equol, which meets the limitation of a composition comprising R-equol. Alvira teaches cyclodextrin (carrier) is used in separation process. See reference. Note R-equol is the only required component for the composition claims. Alvira does not teach that the combination of equol and cyclodextrin is pharmaceutical. However, in a claim drawn to a composition a statement to intended use (pharmaceutical) has little patentable significance. In addition, it is well known that cyclodextrin can be used in pharmaceutical compositions which makes it obvious to manufacture the combination of equol and cyclodextrin. Alvira teaches all that is recited in claims 4 and 5 except for the R-equol being present in 90 or 96% enantiomeric purity. An artisan provided the technique of Alvira would have been able to optimize the purity of R-equol through routine experimentation even to the level of 90 or 96% purity. Alvira teaches all that is recited in claim 29 except for the specified conjugates. In the absence of unexpected data, it would have been obvious to employ any conjugated of the instant equol including those recited in the instant claims. One would have been motivated to do this because equol and conjugates thereof would have been expected to have been equally effective.

Response to Applicants' argument

The Applicants argue that the Alvira reference does not disclose or suggest a pharmaceutical composition or any formulation that consist essentially of R-equol plus a pharmaceutical adjuvant, carrier or excipient or any composition comprising pure R-equol or any composition for oral or topical application comprising R-equol which is substantially free of S-equol. Applicants also provide a declaration by Dr. Jackson which demonstrates that R-equol show unexpected results in comparison to the S-equol and racemic in specific applications. The Examiner argues that terms/phrases such as "pharmaceutical composition" and "for oral consumption or topical application" refer to intended use. The Examiner reiterates that in claims drawn to composition a statement to utility has no or little patentable significance. The Examiner further argues that Alvira teaches resolving the R and S isomers of equol in cyclodextrin; therefore, the final composition would consist essentially of R-equol in cyclodextrin which would be substantially free of the S-equol. Although the declaration provides different results for the R-equol with respect to the S-equol and the racemic, Alvira has already shown that the R and S isomers of equol are resolvable. For this reason, Alvira reads on instant claims drawn to a composition consisting essentially of R-equol plus cyclodextrin.

New Rejections based on IDS filed 4/20/09

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wldyarini et al. (Isoflavonoid compounds from Red Clover (Trifolium pretense) Protect from Inflammation and immune Suppression induced by UV Radiation, Photochemistry and Photobiology, 2001, 74(3), pp. 465-470). The reference teaches Isoequol (R-equol) in lotion (carrier). The lotion can be applied topically to treat inflammation (pharmaceutical application). See entire reference.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 4,5,29,34-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wldyarini et al. as applied to claims 1 and 2. See 102 rejection above. The reference teaches all that is recited in claims 4,5,29,34-36 except for the purity level of the R-equol in the composition and the specified conjugates. An artisan provided the teaching of Wldyarini would have been able to optimize the purity of R-equol through routine experimentation even to the level of 90 or 96% purity. In the absence of unexpected data, it would have been obvious to employ any conjugated of the instant equol including those recited in the instant claims. One would have been motivated to do this because equol and conjugates thereof would have been expected to have been equally effective.
